Describer: A teacher sitting in his classroom participating in an interview.

Sometimes I end up bringing the paperwork home at night and that's just the way it is, and that's ok by me. Our program is flexible so that we do have time in-between visits to also then get some paper work done. I may see a child in the morning and then I haven't scheduled a visit until afternoon, so I can come back to the office and then get a report written or plan for the next day that way. That's one thing about our program; the flexibility of that program makes it a little bit easier to get our paper work done.
